win Smith, the Chicago orientalist asserted that it contained "incomparably the most important body of medicinal knowledge which has survived to us from the ancient Orient anywhere" He explained that whereas the other known ancient Egyptian medical documents were "hodge-podges of recipes dominated by magic," part of the Smith papyrus contained a systematic organization and discussion of cases.

HEART DESCRIBED.

The passage about the heart reads in part: "There is in it (the heart) a canal leading to every member at the body. Concerning these—if the physician places the fingers on the back of the head, on the hands, on the pulse, on the legs, he discovers the heart, for the heart leads to every member and ... it heats (literery member and ... it heats (liter-ally, speaks) in the canals of every member." Dr. Breasted said that al-though a similar account is given in the papyrus Ebers, the account in this papyrus is longer, and "forms an explanatory gloss appended to a case of a wound in the head—appar-

ADVANCED KNOWLEDGE

ADVANCED KNOWLEDGE.

The papyrus reveals a tendency to trust more to operations than to drugs, and a disposition to co-operate with nature which Professor Breasted considers extraordinarily advanced. For example, the practitioner is advised in certain cases "to moor the patients on his fingers," meaning "to put him on his accustomed feed without giving him medical treatment." Professor Breasted suggested that the idlom was derived tomed food without giving alim medical treatment." Professor Breasted suggested that the idiom was derived fro mine custom of eating with the tingers, and observed. "The student of English 5,000 years hence will doubtless find phrases about food,

like 'grub-stake quite as puzzling."
The text contains directions for operations on fractures and dislocations

Part of the papyrus was sold to Mr. Smith in January 1862, by Egyptians who had ransacked a tomb. Two months later they sold him a counterfest roll patched together from rubbish which they gave the appearance of a papyrus by wrapping around it and gluing in place tattered fragments which they had stripped from the genuine roll. Mr. Smith recognized and rescued the new fragments, which contained the discussion of the heart and its system of canals.

WALL ST. BOOM MOVE CHECKED

BY STUART P. WEST.

Special Correspondent of The Standard-Examiner.

(Copyright, 1922 by The Standard-Examiner.)

NEW YORK, June 17.—The severe check to Wall street speculation in the past week had been clearly fore shadowed in developments as they were summarized a week ago. Nothing happened in the outside situation that had a really serious bearing upon the market. The failure of all negotiations for a German loan, was disappointing. It naturally revived discussion of German ability to fulfill the reparations program and unseasiness on this account was reflected in the drop in German marks very close to the extreme low point of two months ago, and in the conspicuous weakness of French exchange.

But from the Wall street point of view, these were only minor factors. The market had discovered at the public was no longer responsive to efforts on the part of speculative syndicates to draw it in. Good news in the shape of falling money rates and increasingly favorable trade reports, fell flat.

PROSPERITY OVER DISCOUNTED.

POSITION STRONGER.

The whole question before the stock market at the close of the week is whether the readjustment has been sufficiently thorough. In many instances stocks have come down to two-thirds to three-quarters of their entire gain since March and as March price level was a conservative level when taking into account the improvement in outside business it would seem that where the reaction has run thus far. It has run far enough.

In other instances where the setback has been less extensive, the corrective process may have to be car.

In other instances where the setback has been less extensive, the corrective process may have to be carried further. But at least the Wall street position as a whole is very much stronger than it was at the beginning of the present month.
The investment market has been little affected by the weakness in the speculative quarter but still there are no signs whatsoever that the main advance which was checked in April is about to be resumed. Several of the Liberty issues and other government war bonds have sold up to their high points and even higher, but these are exceptions. The general run of high grade corporate bonds continues.

> The abandonment, for several months at any rate, of the project of a great international loan to Germany has made the German economic plight worse than ever. Without help from abroad Germany must depend upon two expedients which have already been tried—increase in taxation and a forced loan to be absorbed by German business men. The best opinion is that the new tax probest opinion is that the new tax program will prove inadequate because it will not reach German capital that long ago was sent out of the coun-try. PROSPERITY OVER DISCOUNTED. The reason was that the speculative movement had gone too far in April and May. It had acted as if the country were on the verge of a great business boom, where as the best that was to be expected was continuation at a gradual pace of the recovery in industrial lines and the return to a period of moderate profits.

The succession of "million share days" on the stock exchange accompanied by the continuous and often violent upbidding of prices did not fail far short of the markets of 1916 and 1919 when general business was piling up abnormal returns and the country was in the midst of war inflation. Recognition finally had to come that no such conditions confront American industry at the present time and that Wall street's campaign discounting reviving prosperity was in the second place altogether excessive.
